#dayofthegirl

This year's Day of the Girl is our very own Wonder Woman Wendie! Wendie Quid, Vice President, has been with AAGI for 18 years now and has proven to be a staple of the company. We did a short Q&A with her. Keep reading to find out what makes her tick.

Q: How many years have you worked in the Automotive Industry?

A: I have worked in the industry for approximately 35 years.

Q: How many years have you worked for AAGI? What's made you stay with AAGI for so long?

A: I have worked for American Auto Guardian, Inc. for eighteen years. I have had and continue to have the opportunity to work with great people whom I consider friends. I am thankful for the constant change and growth. AAGI has had excellent leaders who moved our company forward in different ways. Al Ranieri, who built his company on ethics and made it profitable. Tim Brugh, who has moved us into the technological age.

Q: What does it mean to you to be a woman in a very male dominated industry?

A: Communication is so important, along with keeping an open mind and having fun. I'm delighted to see more women step into this industry. I applaud the women driven agencies that have increased throughout my tenure here.

Q: How does it feel to be the head of three departments in a company growing as quickly as AAGI?

A: I am nothing without my team, which I am very proud of. It is critical that our teams can change processes, think outside the box and be secure in their decisions.

Q: How do you stay motivated on a day to day basis?

A: It is wonderful that in this business there is always something new to learn about. The constant flow of daily questions, research, and mentoring others keeps me excited every day.
